DIKE CALAMITY.

An Awful Tornado Visits Pennsylvania.

Many Dead and Hundreds of Buildings Ruined at Wilkes-Barre—Summersville Annihilated—Severe Storm Struck—Miraculous Escape.

Wilkes-Barre, Pa., Aug. 28.—At five o'clock yesterday afternoon the most terrible cyclone ever experienced in Pennsylvania, or the East for that matter, struck this city. It came up from the river, from what point it originated is not known.

The suddenness of the storm's coming was one of its most awful features. The heavens were as black as night and the wind blew with great frightful velocity. Whole rows of trees were blown down.

Following this hundreds of houses were unroofed, partly blown over or completely demolished and worse than all, the violation of death was sent upon a number of people. How many were killed is not known, but it is feared that at least twenty-five have succumbed to the storm.

Large districts in several sections of the city are in absolute ruin and the women and children are in the streets crying and wringing their hands in absolute despair. The storm reached hundreds of thousands of dollars.

Passenger trains and locomotives at the depot were blown over and every thing in the city, electric light, telephone and telegraph lines, were destroyed. The devastation is to be compared with nothing in the memory of the oldest residents.

Four men are known to have been killed in the Hazard wire rope works. A house on Scott street occupied by miners, who had just returned from work, and in three of the inmates were killed.

The huge stack of the Kyle planing mills fell on a man and two horses and all were killed.

A little colored girl was killed by a falling building on South Main street. Two men suffered death by the falling of a portion of Stegmaier's brewery, and a third incurred the same fate through the falling of a portion of the almost completed dormitory of S. L. Brown's handsome brick business block on East Market street.

There are undoubtedly fifteen or sixteen other buildings as reports are coming in constantly to the effect that many more people have suffered heavy losses, and it will be months before all the damage can be repaired. One hundred in property have been telephoned for and building mechanics of all kinds can find employment here for weeks to come, as it is already known that 200 buildings have been blown down or otherwise damaged.

The Murray shaft fan house was blown down and the fan stopped. There are twenty-seven men in the mine, but it is hoped that they can be gotten out.

Reports came from Sugar Notch, a mining town three miles from here, that the destruction of property is terrible and that many lives have been lost. At Parsons and Mill Creek, four miles from here, coal breakers in all directions have been more or less damaged and the number of killed will reach ten.

Horrible was the scene in the Hazard wire rope works. Dead and dying lay on the floor and their heaving cries were heard all over the city. The storm struck the rear of the large brick building, about 300 men being employed in the works. The floor and side walls collapsed, and the building was blown down and the fan stopped.

As soon as the calm succeeded the awful cyclone, men rushed into the ruins and carried the injured in line to the hospital. The cyclone was unannounced and laid them upon the floor. Rude beds of matting were made for the victims and physicians were summoned.

Mr. Mary's Catholic Church, South Washington street, is a total wreck. The massive tower in the rear of the church was blown down clear to the top, and the roof of the church was smashed. The building of Michael Coogan, smashing the building. The inmates were all huddled together in the hall and escaped any injury.
